

Helping your children choose books they will love

Lovereading4kids.co.uk is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy and fun

Opening extract from
Tim to the Rescue

Written by Edward Ardizzone

Published by
Frances Lincoln Children's Books

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

Lovereading .co.uk

Text and illustrations copyright © Edward Ardizzone 1949

The right of Edward Ardizzone to be identified as the author and illustrator of this work has been asserted by the Estate of Ardizzone in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act, 1988.

First published by Oxford University Press in 1949

This edition published in the UK in 2015 by Frances Lincoln Children's Books, 74–77 White Lion Street, London N1 9PF
www.franceslincoln.com

All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form, or by any means, electrical, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise without the prior written permission of the publisher or a licence permitting restricted copying. In the United Kingdom such licences are issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data available on request

ISBN: 978-1-84780-630-7

Printed in China

1 3 5 7 9 8 6 4 2

Little Tim was in his house by the sea.
It was stormy weather and Tim who was tired of his books and lessons was looking out of the window and was wishing that he was at sea again and having tremendous adventures on some ship tossing about among the waves.

But Tim had promised his parents to stay at home and work hard and a promise like this has to be kept.

“Oh dear,” said Tim to himself, “I am bored with my sums, but I suppose I must learn them if I am to become a real grown up sailor.”

Suddenly there was a knock at the door.

It was Tim's great friend, Captain McFee, the old sea captain.

“Fine news, my boy,” said McFee. “I am tired of being a landlubber so I have got a ship again. The S.S. Fidelity of 3000 Tons.”

Tim longed more than anything else to go to sea with the captain and he begged his mother and father to let him go.

At last, as he had been a good boy and had worked hard at his lessons, they agreed, but said that he could go for one voyage only, and that he must promise to work at his lesson books in his spare time.

Captain McFee was pleased. He would take Tim as second ship's boy, but he warned Tim that once on board they could not be the same sort of friends as before. On board he was the skipper and discipline must be maintained. "Aye Aye, Sir," said Tim.

Soon the great day for leaving arrived. Tim's father and mother came to see him off. His mother cried a little when he waved goodbye. Tim could not help feeling rather sad and lonely too.