

Helping your children choose books they will love

Lovereading4kids.co.uk is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy and fun

Opening extract from
Puppy Academy: Scout and the Sausage Thief

Written by
Gill Lewis

Published by
Oxford University Press

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

GILL Lewis
PUPPY Academy

Scout
AND THE SAUSAGE THIEF

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

OXFORD

UNIVERSITY PRESS

Great Clarendon Street, Oxford OX2 6DP
Oxford University Press is a department of the University of Oxford.
It furthers the University's objective of excellence in research, scholarship, and education by publishing worldwide in

Oxford New York

Auckland Cape Town Dar es Salaam Hong Kong Karachi
Kuala Lumpur Madrid Melbourne Mexico City Nairobi
New Delhi Shanghai Taipei Toronto

With offices in

Argentina Austria Brazil Chile Czech Republic France Greece
Guatemala Hungary Italy Japan Poland Portugal Singapore
South Korea Switzerland Thailand Turkey Ukraine Vietnam

Oxford is a registered trade mark of Oxford University Press
in the UK and in certain other countries

© Gill Lewis 2015

Illustrations © Sarah Horne 2015

The moral rights of the author have been asserted

Database right Oxford University Press (maker)

First published 2015

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means,
without the prior permission in writing of Oxford University Press, or as expressly permitted by law, or under terms agreed with the appropriate reprographics rights organization. Enquiries concerning reproduction outside the scope of the above should be sent to the Rights Department, Oxford University Press, at the address above

You must not circulate this book in any other binding or cover and you must impose this same condition on any acquirer

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

Data available

ISBN: 978-0-19-273920-9

1 3 5 7 9 10 8 6 4 2

Printed in UK

Paper used in the production of this book is a natural,
recyclable product made from wood grown in sustainable forests
The manufacturing process conforms to the environmental regulations of the country of origin

1

Scout hid behind the stack of baked-bean cans and waited. The supermarket was busy with Saturday morning shoppers. She knew this was the moment when Frank Furter, the notorious sausage thief, would strike again. He could steal a salami from a sandwich or a hot dog from a hot-dog stand without ever being seen. No police dog had caught him in action yet.

No one knew just how Frank Furter stole the sausages. But Scout thought she knew. She'd worked it out and now she was ready. She looked up at the ceiling of the supermarket and waited for Frank's next move.

High above people's heads, one white ceiling tile slid slowly sideways. Frank's face appeared in the gap, spying down on the fresh meat counter. Scout could see the bungee rope tied around his chest. She'd have to be quick on her feet to catch him.

Down came Frank.

Gotcha!

‘Gotcha!’ shouted Scout.

She pounced, wrapping the string of sausages round and round him, tying him up in a big sausage knot.

Everyone cheered. Frank Furter had been caught at last and Scout was their hero.

'Scout!'

'Scout!'

Scout woke up from her daydream.

'Come on, Scout,' said her mum.
'Finish your breakfast. You can't be late for school today.'

‘Do you think Frank Furter will ever be caught?’ said Scout.

Scout’s dad put down his paper. ‘He’s very clever. No one has worked out just how he steals the sausages.’

‘But how do you know it’s him?’ asked Scout.

‘Frank’s pawprints are found all over the crime scenes,’ said Scout’s dad. He shook his head. ‘Your mum and I have been working on this investigation for months. If we don’t catch him before the weekend, the village sausage festival will have to be cancelled.’

‘Cancelled?’ said Scout. ‘But it’s

the most famous sausage festival in the world.'

'I know,' said Mum. 'But unless Frank is caught, no one's sausages are safe. These are dark times. There hasn't been a case like this since Peppa Roni the Italian Spinoni hijacked Burt the Butcher's lorry.'

Scout frowned. 'If anyone can catch Frank, you and Dad can.'

Scout's mum sighed. 'I hope so, Scout. I hope so.'

Scout's mum and dad were well-known police dogs. They were loved by the villagers and feared by burglars. Until the recent spate of sausage robberies, there hadn't been a crime in Little Barking for three years.

Scout's mum went on. 'Frank trained to be a police dog with us when we were at Puppy Academy. He had a thing about sausages even back then.'

‘Frank Furter was a police dog!’
said Scout. ‘But he should know not
to break the law.’

Scout’s dad looked across at her.
‘There have been a few police dogs
who have forgotten their vows.’

Scout put her paw to her chest. ‘I vow to be honest, brave, and true,
and to serve my fellow dogs and
humans too.’

‘And above all else, be kind,’
smiled Scout’s mum. ‘I’m sure you will make a great police dog one day.’

Scout puffed out her chest in pride. She was a German shepherd.

She wanted to be a police dog like her mum and dad one day too. She wanted to catch burglars, find lost children, and keep people in Little Barking safe.

