

LoveReading4kids.co.uk
is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy
and fun

Opening extract from Tales for Little Children

Published by Usborne Publishing Ltd

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

LoveReading  .co.uk

Goldilocks
and the Three Bears

Once there was a little girl named Goldilocks.

She looked like a little angel...

...but she was really a little trouble maker.

She was naughty from first thing in the morning...

all through the day...

...to last thing at night.

And she never, ever did as she was told.

“Please go and get some bread from the village,”
said Goldilocks’ mother one day.

“Go straight there,” she added firmly.

“I will,” sighed Goldilocks.

But Goldilocks soon
wandered off.

She saw smoke billowing from the chimney of a thatched cottage.

“What a funny little house,”
she thought.

She pressed her face
against the window.

“No one at home,” she thought with a grin.

She pushed open the front door, and a terrifically tasty smell wafted out.

Goldilocks skipped inside.

There on a table were three bowls of porridge.

Ahhhhh!

First she tried the biggest bowl.

Her face flushed bright red.
“Too hot!” she gasped.

Then she tried the middle-sized bowl.

“Ooo!” cried Goldilocks.
“Too cold!”

Last of all, she tried the little bowl.

It was the yummiest porridge she'd ever tasted.

“What next?” she said.

In front of a crackling fire were three chairs.

First, she tried the biggest one.

“Too hard!” she said, rubbing her sore bottom.

Then she tried the middle-sized one.

Ooof!

“Too soft!” yelped Goldilocks, sinking into the squishy cushions.

She sat down firmly on the smallest chair.

Just right!

But seconds later came a snap!

and the little wooden chair collapsed.

Whoops!

“I need a nap,” yawned Goldilocks.

She climbed the stairs...

and came to a big, bright bedroom.

First, she tried
the biggest bed.

“Too high!” she puffed,
out of breath.

Then she tried the middle-sized bed.

“Too deep!” she cried,
drowning in the
squashy mattress.

Help!