

And perched on its hillside,
no company to keep,
the tree settled down
for a long winter's sleep.

When suddenly – oh! –
through the frosted-breath night came the crunching of footsteps and a warm beam of light.

