Leap, Hare, Leap!

Dom Conlon

Illustrations Anastasia Izlesou

This book belongs to:

Dip-dwelling grass-grazer,
beautiful Hare - ask why she's standing,
ask what she hears.

Wait. Listen!

A fox with a red and white coat is partially hidden in a dense thicket of green leaves and plants. The fox is looking towards the right. The background is a bright yellow, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. In the foreground, there are various flowers, including a large pink one with a bumblebee on it, and several white daisies. A brown tail with a white tip is visible on the right side of the frame.

The field grass hisses and Hare's long ears rise like hands in class.

She spies a flash of sunrise, a tail tipped with cloud and...

A detailed illustration of a brown hare leaping through a dense forest floor. The hare is shown in profile, moving from left to right, with its long ears flapping and its body in mid-air. The background is a rich, dark green, filled with various types of foliage, including large broad leaves, ferns, and small white flowers with yellow centers. Several clusters of purple raspberries are scattered throughout the scene. The overall style is a flat, illustrative art style with a focus on naturalistic detail.

...quick as a sniff, she's a firm-footed lea-leaper.

Leap, Hare, LEAP!

Leap into the sky. Let the world turn.
Where does Hare land?
In an American desert, where the sun looks for water in the earth's dry bowl and where a jackrabbit bobs by.
