

Camp currency

German Enigma cipher

Binoculars

REVISED EDITION

DK LONDON

Senior Editor Carron Brown
 Senior Art Editor Lynne Moulding
 Managing Editor Francesca Baines
 Managing Art Editor Philip Letsu
 Production Editor George Nimmo
 Production Controller Samantha Cross
 Senior Jackets Designer Surabhi Wadhwa-Gandhi
 Jacket Design Development Manager Sophia MTT
 Publisher Andrew Macintyre
 Associate Publishing Director Liz Wheeler
 Art Director Karen Self
 Publishing Director Jonathan Metcalf
 Consultant Philip Parker

DK DELHI

Senior Editor Shatarupa Chaudhuri
 Senior Art Editor Vikas Chauhan
 Art Editor Sifat Fatima
 Assistant Editor Sai Prasanna
 Project Picture Researcher Aditya Katyal
 Managing Editor Kingshuk Ghoshal
 Managing Art Editor Govind Mittal
 Senior DTP Designer Neeraj Bhatia
 DTP Designer Pawan Kumar
 Jacket Designer Juhi Sheth

FIRST EDITION

Project Editor Melanie Halton
 Senior Art Editor Jane Tetzlaff
 Art Editor Ann Cannings Assistant Editor Jayne Miller
 Managing Editor Sue Grabham
 Senior Managing Art Editor Julia Harris
 Additional photography Steve Gorton
 Production Kate Oliver
 Picture Research Mollie Gillard
 Senior DTP Designer Andrew O'Brien

This Eyewitness® Guide has been conceived by Dorling Kindersley Limited and Editions Gallimard

This edition published in 2021
 First published in Great Britain in 2000 by Dorling Kindersley Limited
 DK, One Embassy Gardens, 8 Viaduct Gardens, London, SW11 7BW

The authorised representative in the EEA is Dorling Kindersley Verlag GmbH, Arnulfstr. 124, 80636 Munich, Germany

Copyright © 2000, 2004, 2007, 2014, 2021
 Dorling Kindersley Limited
 A Penguin Random House Company
 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
 001-314469-Aug/2021

All rights reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in or introduced into a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form, or by any means (electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise), without the prior written permission of the copyright owner.

A CIP catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.
 ISBN: 978-0-2413-8397-1

Printed and bound in UAE

For the curious
www.dk.com

This book was made with Forest Stewardship Council™ certified paper—one small step in DK's commitment to a sustainable future. For more information go to www.dk.com/our-green-pledge

Homemade wireless receiver used by a Dutch family during the occupation

British fire service badge

Straw snow boots made by German soldiers in Russia

Japanese prayer flag

Contents

6	A world divided	44	Stalingrad
8	Heading to war	46	Inside the Soviet Union
10	Preparing for the worst	48	Desert fighting
12	Lightning war	50	Propaganda
14	Occupation	52	The Holocaust
16	Resistance	54	D-Day invasion
18	German army	56	Liberation
20	The Battle of Britain	58	The atomic bomb
22	Bombing raids	60	Victory
24	Total war	62	The aftermath
26	In enemy territory	64	Did you know?
28	The prisoners	66	Timeline
30	Code-breakers	68	Find out more
32	America at war	70	Glossary
34	Women at work	72	Index
36	A wartime childhood
38	The Pacific
40	Japan
42	The Battle of the Atlantic

Camp food parcel

A world divided

After World War I, the world was split into three main camps: democratic nations – including Britain, France, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, and the US – where people elected their governments; nations ruled by dictators – including fascist Italy, Nazi Germany, and nationalist Japan; and the communist state – the Soviet Union (USSR) – meant to be run by workers but really run by the tyrannical Josef Stalin. Conflicts between these three camps led to a world war in 1939.

Italian fascism

Italian fascists used the fasces (an ancient Rome symbol of power) as their symbol. But Italy remained a kingdom, so its flag bore the royal coat of arms.

Spread of fascism

In 1922, Benito Mussolini turned Italy into a fascist (dictator-led) state. By the 1930s, fascist rulers ran Spain, Portugal, Austria, Romania, and Germany – where the Nazi Party took fascist ideas to the extreme.

Stainless steel figures are young, strong, and attractive

Power to workers

Communists, who were against private ownership, took power in Russia in 1917 and formed the Soviet Union. Few countries trusted it or its leader, and refused to support Soviet beliefs.

Soviet symbol

The hammer (for industrial workers) and sickle (for farm workers) was the Soviet Union's symbol and was on the national flag.

Vera Mukhina's Worker and Peasant statue, for the Paris World Fair, 1937

The Nazi Party

Set up in 1920 and led by Adolf Hitler, the National Socialist German Worker's (Nazi) Party believed blond, white Germans were a master race. The Nazis regularly held vast rallies, where members paraded with banners and listened to speeches from Hitler and other leading Nazis. When the Nazi Party came to power in Germany in 1933, they held a rally every year (shown here) in Nuremberg, south Germany, showing their strength, determination, and Hitler's power over his party.

Soldiers carrying NSDAP (Nazi Party) swastika banners

Imperial Japanese army uniform, c. 1930s

Imperial Japan

Japan fought on the side of Britain, France, and the US in World War I, but felt cheated when given little new territory. In the 1920s, nationalists came to rule Japan, wanting to make it an imperial power in Asia.

Nazi symbol

The swastika is an ancient religious symbol, common in Greece and India. Adolf Hitler adopted the swastika as the symbol for the Nazi Party, and it appeared on the German national flag in 1935.

"After 15 years of despair, a great people is back on its feet."
- Adolf Hitler, 1933

Presentation box for a copy of Mein Kampf

Hitler's manifesto

Hitler wrote Mein Kampf (My Struggle) in 1924. It was ignored at the time, but clearly stated what he intended to do if he won power, such as creating a large army and persecuting Jewish people.

The Reichstag fire

An arson attack on the Reichstag (parliament) building in Berlin on 27 February 1933 paved the way for the rise of the Nazi rule. Hitler alleged that the communists wanted to topple the government and used this false charge to take absolute control of Germany.

Reichstag fire on 27 February 1933

Treaty of Versailles

After its defeat in World War I, Germany was forced to sign a treaty in 1919. It lost its empire and was banned from having a large army. Most Germans supported Hitler's refusal to accept these terms.

Japan invades China

After taking over the Chinese province of Manchuria in 1932, Japan launched a full-scale invasion of China in 1937, seizing the capital, Nanjing, and much of the coast.

Events in North Africa

Italy's leader, Mussolini, wanted to build a new Roman Empire in North Africa and turn the Mediterranean into an "Italian lake". Italy invaded Abyssinia (now Ethiopia) in 1935, sending emperor Haile Selassie, right, into exile.

Nazi-Soviet pact

On 23 August 1939, the Soviets and German foreign ministers signed a non-aggression pact, which left Germany free to invade Poland and western Europe. They met again to confirm the division of Poland between them.

Heading to war

In 1933, Hitler's Nazi Party came to power in Germany and began to build its army. In 1936, Hitler sent troops to the Rhineland - a German industrial area next to France and Belgium - then took over Austria and parts of Czechoslovakia. Meanwhile, Italy invaded Albania, Greece, and North Africa, and Japan invaded China. Strong ties grew between Germany, Italy, and Japan. By the late 1930s, Britain and France were re-equipping their armies, while the USA watched Japan's rise with concern. The world was preparing for war.

Hitler moves into Austria

In March 1938, Hitler took his troops into Austria and declared an Anschluss (union) between the countries, breaking the Treaty of Versailles. Most Austrians favoured the union, but nearby countries were concerned at Hitler's growing power.

Britain and France together

This 1938 visit of King George VI (far left) and Queen Elizabeth to France marked Britain and France's close ties. They were alarmed by Germany and Italy's growing strength and, in 1939, agreed to help Poland, Romania, and Greece if Germany or Italy attacked.

A peaceful approach

In 1938, European leaders agreed to placate Hitler and signed the Munich Agreement. This let Germans in the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia unite with Germany. British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain (above) said it guaranteed peace. Six months later, Hitler took over all Czechoslovakia.

Soldiers destroy the border barrier between Poland and German-controlled Danzig

German forces invading Poland

Invasion of Poland

Hitler demanded the Polish Corridor - a strip of Poland dividing East Prussia from the rest of Germany. Poland resisted, so he took it; German forces here are seen dismantling the border posts in 1939 as they invade Poland. In response, Britain and France declared war on Germany - World War II began.

Preparing for the worst

War loomed 1938–39, so Britain, France, Italy, and Germany prepared for the worst, with plans to ration food and raw materials. France had already built the Maginot Line to defend it from German invasion. Britain expected its major cities to be bombed soon, so took care to protect its people, digging shelters, and issuing gas masks. Once war broke out in September 1939, children were evacuated to the countryside, but it was the German invasions of April–May 1940 that really tested these precautions.

Troops and weapons are transported on the Maginot underground railway

French defence

The Maginot Line, France's main fortification, took six years to construct (1929–34) and stretched along France's eastern border with Germany. It consisted of anti-tank defences, bomb-proof artillery shelters, and forts, many linked by underground railways.

Tin-can mortar bomb

Improvising

The British Home Guard was a voluntary unit that protected defence installations and watched out for enemy infiltration. They had few weapons and so they improvised, using cans to make mortar bombs and bottles for grenades.

Grenade made from a wine bottle

German gas mask

Gas masks

Everyone in Britain was issued with a gas mask. In Germany, only those considered high risk, such as children, air-raid wardens, and Nazi Party officials, were given masks. Gas was never used by either side, so the masks were never needed.

Gas filter

Guarding the home front

At the end of the war, all German men aged 16–60 not already in the army were called to the Volkssturm (home guard). They had little training and had to make do with what weapons they could find.

Air-raid shelters

Most British city-dwellers installed in their gardens an underground Anderson shelter (corrugated-iron tunnel). In February 1941, there were Morrison shelters (steel cages for use indoors) for those without gardens.

EYEWITNESS

German rationing

A woman from Berlin recalled how they stood in long queues to get an eight-day ration allowance in honour of Hitler's birthday. She said that no one could afford to miss rations of this type as food was so short. Rationing of food became severe from 1943.

German civilian ration card

British beach mine

Beach defence

Mines were planted to defend possible invasion beaches in southern Britain and northern France.

Balloon protection

Large barrage balloons protected Britain's cities from air raids. They were launched before a raid and trailed steel cables beneath them. Bombers had to fly high to avoid the cables, reducing their accuracy.

“The enemy sees your light! Make it dark!”

This German poster warns civilians to keep all lights shielded at night or risk helping enemy bombers to find their town. Blackouts were compulsory throughout Germany and Britain.