From the platform Leonie saw the orange lights of the fast train that would bring her and her mother
all the way to the big city.

Leonie couldn't believe her eyes.

Everyone on the train seemed a little bit extraordinary,

So Leonie decided she was extraordinary too.

From head . . .

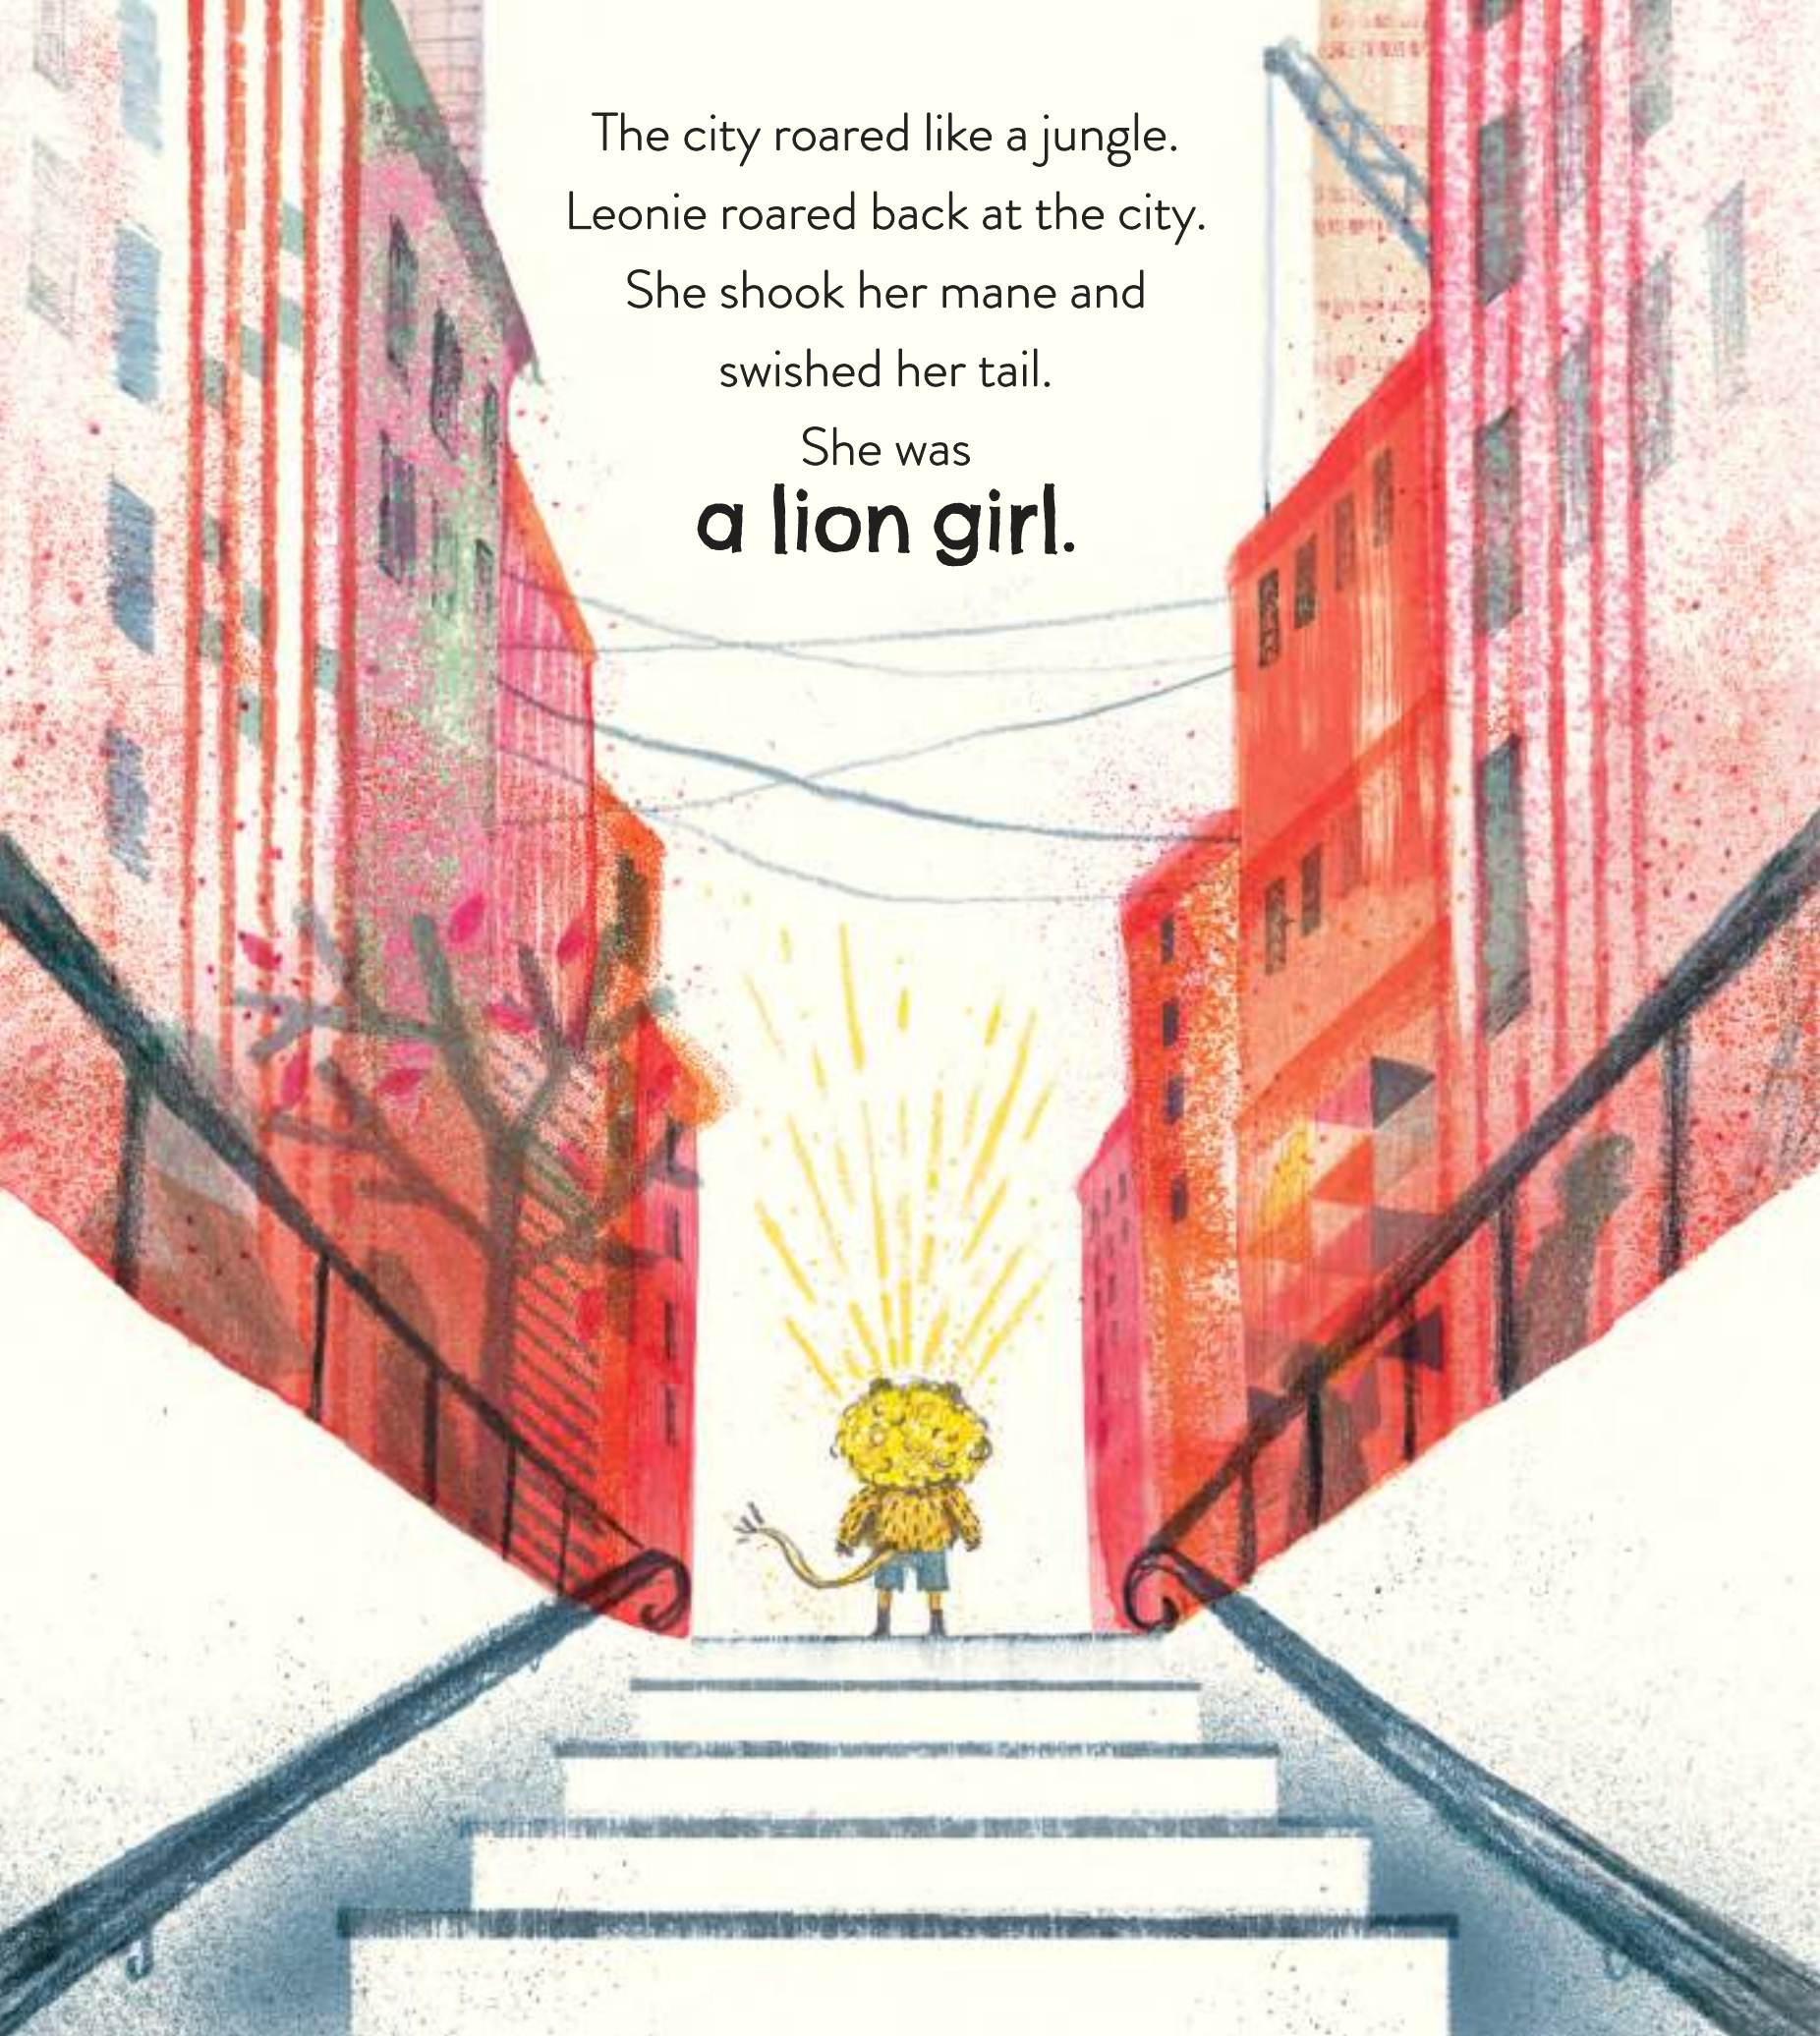

. . . to tail.

The city roared like a jungle.
Leonie roared back at the city.
She shook her mane and swished her tail.

She was a lion girl.

Leonie's mother took her hand.
Around them, loud beats drummed and engines barked.

The whole city sparkled with colours, sounds and interesting faces, and Leonie was going to discover them all.
