

LONDON

WELCOME TO LONDON, the greatest city in the world. For over thousand years, London has been a thriving centre for commerce, culture and finance. Still capturing the world's imagination, it is as famous for its history, customs and the modern skyline as it is for its motto: "To have a man is good all London, but to have a life!"

HARRODS

The name says everything about London's famous department store, from its early years as a pair of shoes and a coat of high boots, their open air floor, you could almost get yourself a full equipped ambulance! Harrods also housed the world's first escalator, built in 1859 customers were allowed to freely receive their orders up.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

The palace is the official London residence of Queen Elizabeth II. It displays a tremendous collection of art and objects, the flag on top of the palace will be the Royal Standard the Union Jack in blue when the Queen is away from home. When done at 11 AM each day, you can watch the changing of the guard in the park.

PICCADILLY CIRCUS

Home to some of the brightest, most vibrant and the most famous places in London. It is the perfect meeting place for London. It is also a great place to enjoy the city's vibrant life and activity.
